

Model Portfolio Adventurous

December 2023

Objective

This portfolio is NOT a risk-free portfolio, rather, it is suitable for a client who is prepared to invest the majority of their overall portfolio into equities, accepting a high level of risk for a potentially higher reward. The primary objective of this portfolio is to generate a long-term total return and income above the Bank of England's base rate and real terms growth (above inflation) which is substantially higher than the long-term return on cash after fees and costs. This portfolio has no capital preservation mandate and can take an unconstrained amount of risk, investing in all assets that are available from the investment universe to achieve the objectives. Due to the higher risk nature of this portfolio, the recommended time-horizon is a minimum of 10 years.

Management

The benchmark we use for comparison purposes for volatility is AFI Aggressive noting that this benchmark currently holds 81.45% in Equity (Analytics, 1st December 2023) and is therefore more aggressive than this portfolio. It would therefore be expected that the benchmark would outperform the portfolio and that the volatility of the benchmark would be higher. The model performance therefore cannot be directly compared to the benchmark.

Market Outlook

Following a difficult October in which conflict in the Middle East and concerns over higher for longer interest rates weighed on sentiment, global equity indices rebounded over the month following a decline in inflation within key developed economies, boosting bets of a 'soft landing'. China's equity market was the sole outlier, facing headwinds over the month as their property market continued to dampen sentiment, with the People's Bank of China pushing lenders to support the ailing property sector. Moving forward, we remain cautious towards equities, noting that we still see a number of near-term headwinds that could dampen current valuations.

As Q3 earnings season winds down, investors have turned their attention to economic data releases over the month with inflation data back in focus. With key central banks now in 'wait and see' mode with regards to their next steps, the downside surprise to both US and UK inflation reports drove expectations that the next move in interest rates would likely be lower. UK inflation was driven lower as the OFGEM Energy Price cap fed through into a sharp decline in energy price inflation, whilst inflation in the US also declined on the back of the recent drop in gasoline prices. These declines raised hopes that central banks would not be required to further raise rates any further, which led to a rally in fixed income markets as investors readjusted their expectations for interest rates in the coming year.

Portfolio Positioning

Whilst the conflict in the Middle East continues with the threat of a spillover still elevated given the recent attacks on commercial vessels, it remains our belief that the diversification within the Adventurous portfolio remains appropriate to support positive performance over the long term. We continue to monitor the situation in the Middle East closely, and should there be significant signs of escalation, we will look at how we can best protect the portfolios. As things stand however, we believe that the long-term outlook for the Adventurous portfolio remains positive noting that despite expectations for market volatility to persist in the near-term, we expect falling interest rates in 2024 and a strong basket of diversified, well positioned assets to drive positive performance moving forward. In addition, we expect long-term themes of onshoring and de-globalisation, to support commodities prices and therefore believe the exposure to natural resources added to the portfolios this year are a key asset classes to remain invested in for the long-term.

Portfolio Volatility

This scatter chart reflects annualised volatility and return in GBP over the past 5 years. Over the long term, we would expect the OBI portfolio to exhibit a lower level of volatility than the benchmark.
